This coin brings to light a new city-state of Ancient India named 'Mrugavati' or 'Mrugamati' (the Sanskrit equivalent of 'Migamati', the name in the coin legend). Although its exact location is as yet uncertain, the typology and hybrid manufacturing technique of the coin suggests it was made in the same belt as the city-states of Erikachha and Suktimati. According to Jain mythology, Mrigavati was a queen of king Shatanika II of Kausambi. When King Chanda Pradyota of Ujjayini laid siege to a fort under her command, she managed to save it from destruction by seeking intervention of Lord Mahavira (6th century BC). The remnants of this fort and settlement are still identified near Kaushambi and it is probable that the settlement became known after the Queen. The coin is of utmost historical importance given this literary context.

103. Medieval Gujarat, unattributed copper coin of post-Gupta period (600-700 AD), issued most likely by feudatories under the Gurjara-Pratihara dynasty, unlisted in major publications, 1.22g. Obv: Stylized figure of 'Lajjagauri', seated in a Yogic posture, holding lotuses in both hands. Rev: A fire altar in the centre with crude Brahmi legend around. Very fine, Very rare.
Sold for : ₹ Estimate : ₹ 4,000 - 5,000

The coin evidently copies the 'fire altar' type coins of Skanda Gupta, but the portrait on obverse is replaced by a figure of Lajjagauri. Both the fire altar motif and the goddess figure here are manifestations of the Sun Cult prevalent in medieval Gujarat.

Sold for : ₹ Estimate : ₹ 10,000 - 12,000

The motif of the horseman suggests that this type may have been issued by a Rashtrakuta ruler, or one of their feudatories. The title 'Madana Pratapa' as yet is not corroborated by any other evidence, so it is difficult to say if this coin is an issue of a feudatory or Rashtrakuta branch of South Gujarat (Lata) or the imperial Rashtrakutas.

The Sankha is always associated with munificence and plenitude. The legend most likely refers to the merit accrued by the issuer who might have been associated with building the temple.

When Jahangir died on 28 Safar, AH 1037 in Kashmir, his powerful courtier Asaf Khan feared the Queen Nur Jahan would place on throne her favourite son Shahryar as the new king. He enthroned Bulaki, the son of Jahangir's second son Khusrau, as 'Dawar Bakhsh'. The Khutba was read in Dawar Bakhsh's name at Bhimbar. His position was bolstered by his brothers and cousins joining him. Asaf Khan first defeated Shahryar's army on the outskirts of Lahore and then having secured Shah Jahan's agreement, proclaimed him as the emperor on 2 Jumada-I 1037. The puppet Dawar Bakhsh was killed along with his brothers and cousins who had sided with him by Shah Jahan's orders on 26 Jumada-I 1037, thus bringing his short reign to an end.

Aurangnagar was the name given by Aurangzeb to the town of Mulher with its adjoining hill fort, presently located in Nashik district of Maharashtra, which was the capital of the small Rajput kingdom of Baglana, strategically located on the trade route between Surat and the Deccan. Aurangzeb, while in office as the viceroy of Deccan under his father the Emperor Shahjahan aggressively pursued a campaign against the rebellion of Shahaji Bhonsle who had resurrected the Deccani Sultanate of Nizamshahi by elevating a boy prince to the throne to create a bulwark against Mughal expansion. In late 1637, the Mughal armies attacked Baglana with a view to separate the state from attempts of Shahaji to form an anti-Mughal alliance. Bahirji, the king of Baglana was defeated and the kingdom was annexed to the Mughal province of Khandesh. The conquest was complete with Bahirji accepting Mughal sovereignty in March 1638, and agreeing to convert to Islam.

'Alamgirpur' is usually taken as an alias of Bhilsa (Vidisha), however, the name change is known to have occurred in late 1670s. The date on this coin is earlier than the name change so the place where it was struck is quite likely a different 'Alamgirpur' than Bhilsa.

The Mughals under Aurangzeb captured Dharwad in 1685 when they absorbed the realms of the Adil Shahi Sultanate after sacking Bijapur. As the town was strategically located and an important trading market, the Mughals made their first foray here into striking coins on the Southern Indian 'Hoan' standard.

Even though the usual issues of Mahindrapur mint are attributed to the Jat kings of Bharatpur State, the 'umbrella' mark on the obverse of this coin indicates that it is an imperial issue, not a Jat one. The coin is in all likelihood struck around July 1783 (the AH date on the coin corresponds to early December 1782 to late October 1783) when the imperial household camped at Deeg, under the command of Afrasiyab Khan, the Mughalia baron of the court. It was here that Afrasiyab murdered his close rival Mirza Shafi in September 1783.

 Sold for : ₹ Estimate : ₹ 70,000 - 90,000

Coins from this mint are a recent discovery. They were most likely struck during a tumultuous period of succession battles between various nobles of the 'Mughalia' faction at the court of Shah Alam II, namely Afrasiyab Khan, Abdul Ahad Khan, Zain al-Abidin Khan and Muhammad Beg Hamadani. The year on the coin corresponds to late November 1783 to mid-October 1784. During this period, there was intense rivalry brewing between Afrasiyab Khan and Muhammad Beg. The latter had confiscated much of the area West and South of Agra, including Braj. Afrasiyab sought the help of Mahadaji Sindhia to quell Muhammad Beg's insubordination.

Shergarh is located to the South-East of Mathura and is an important crossing point on the Jamuna between Mathura and Aligarh. During these struggles, it is known that Muhammad Beg once crossed the Jamuna after encamping at Shergarh and went towards Jaipur.

The coin bears close resemblance with the rupees of the Jats struck at Deeg and it is likely that Muhammad Beg Hamadani might have struck them during this short stay at Shergarh. In all likelihood this must have been an emergency issue, made to payments to the troops fighting on Muhammad Beg's side.

Shahjahanpur was an important market town in the Sindhia territories in Central India, located between the Chambal and Betwa rivers. Later coins with a Trisul mint-mark have been offered in other auctions. This is perhaps the earliest issues of the mint, which has no Trisul mark on reverse, and if the RY on the reverse is assumed to be of Shah Alam II, it was struck soon after Mahadaji Sindhia's claim to the Sindhia gaddi was ratified by the Peshwa.

The early gold issues of Kota are extremely rare. Around the same time, Jaipur was striking a coinage with a similar symbol and due to the high acceptance rate of those coins as well as because all Rajput dynasts liked to emulate Jaipur, other states like Kota and Raghugarh issued coins with a similar symbol.

Some coins of Tranquebar are struck bearing the names of the ships which brought in the metal used to strike coins, presumably as a means to account for a measure of the bullion flow. The metal for this coin was brought in on a ship called 'St. Anna', which was a 350 laester (900 tons) ship. It sailed from Copenhagen together with a ship named 'St Iacob' in 1635 and reached Tranquebar on 2nd September 1636.

During the First World War, S.S. Egypt collided with a cargo steamer in thick fog north-west of France in May 1922. The Ship sank to a depth of 400 feet. It had in its cargo Gold valued at One Million Pounds. Lure of this bullion made treasure hunters attempt salvage operations. There were many instances of bounty hunters who attempted to salvage this gold and failed. One such group of salvage or treasure hunters formed a Company called 'SORIMA'. They hired a cargo ship called 'Artiglio' with the sole purpose of salvaging the One Million Pound worth of Gold in SS Egypt.

In June 1932. A team of divers on board the cargo ship 'Artiglio', were able to salvage the gold and along with it the unsigned notes of Hyderabad in denominations of 5, 10 & 100. There were a total of 1,65,000 notes of which after protracted negotiations through his advocates with 'Sorima', the Nawab of Hyderabad bought back 1,28,000 notes in July 1939. These bank notes were burnt in London. The remaining notes are either with collectors or are missing under the sea. These notes were printed by Waterlow & Sons.
